SUNDAY, APRIL 16, 1871.

All the bills for the regulation of railroads and warehouses, matured by committees, have now passed both houses of the Legislature, and those of them have received the signature of the Governor. They are as follows:

1. A bill to establish a maximum maximum rate of charges for the transportation of passengers on railroads in this State.

2. A bill to prevent unjust discriminations and extortions in the rates to be charged by the different railroads in this State for the transportation of freights.

3. A bill regulating the receiving and transporting of grain by railroad companies. This bill covers the questions involved in delivering grain in warehouse and connecting of tracks for that purpose.

4. The Watchborne bill. This bill promotes the inspection of grain, and of inspection, registration, and other matters connected therewith.

5. The Senate bill for the appointment of a board of three Commissioners, whose duty it shall be to enforce the foregoing laws, prosecute offenders, and sue railroads for wrongs, and collect statistical information for the use of subsequent sessions of the General Assembly.

FOR PRESIDENT—HORACE GREELEY.

Mr. L. U. Reavis, of St. Louis, by occupation a renovator of the national capital, has, by private circulation, issued a pamphlet entitled "Horace Greeley for President in 1872." Mr. Reavis, like the prophets of old, is moved to give out how he is prompted, and in behalf of Horace Greeley, in the interest of the Kingdom of Zion, prohibition, and the sudden resumption of specie payments. He says it is high time, if we just search for wealth and dominion, that we should elevate the national life and character. It is "high time" that we had "a first-class man at the helm of State—a genuine successor of Washington and Lincoln." Wells, Mr. Reavis redoubles his assertion that we are living in "high times" now, he evidently looks for "higher times" under the Presidency of H. G.

Two fallacies, he declares, underlie and underrate under a democratic form of government. One is the notion of a petit jury, and the other is the next nomination that a national convention will make for President. Since his youth up, a certain shrinking reflection has always haunted the great philosopher's wide-spread fame. It is not to be sustained, however, that it grows greater with his ever-rising years. If the people were to vote individually for President, there would be several hundred or thousand votes cast for Horace Greeley. I dont find Horace Greeley would get more votes than any other one candidate. One man would vote for Horace on principles purely personal, and for reasons purely personal. He is a good writing, strawberries and turnips; another would vote for the anti-slavery Horace, who used to write those shocking, humorous, yes-post, witty editorials which the envious attributed to Fry, Congleton, and Hildreth; another would vote for the admirable domestic politician on Forney, Booth, and Fechter, especially where he signs himself "H. G.;" and then would cherish the idea that Horace the peace-loving Philanthropist would be the very man to put, (although he should happen to be a friend to land to a foe), and, if elected, would brush the Executive chair before taking his seat, lest he should crush a fly during over-fresh. On last consideration I am free to say that the Democratic party will be found with a few old cronies of the Buchanan Horace, rather and fainter of our faith, more particularly to farther.

Unparalleled rebels will be expected to shout peans to the pride of Hudson, because he defended the right of secession in the abstract, the right of a government for the dissolution of the Union in particular if Lee should water his horses in the Susquehanna, which he did; and, finally, because he bailed out Davis for the suffering and guiltless Jeff. Davis. The criminal classes would vote for him because they dislike hanging. Negroes would worship him because, in the fat-back, dark and dreary hours of bondage, long before they had heard of "Horace Greeley," words of faith and cheer to them were "Forward, Mary." People who are "going to fall" would vote for him, because he would satisfy them that fall is a pleasing indulgence in the mental luxury of retrospection. The friends of cheap newspapers and cheap cash and dearer goods would gladly sustain one who undertook to supply them with both. Not a few Democrats would vote for him, in the belief that Horace's known love for his enemies and disinterment of the dead would put to rest the last leading rebels to please in the Cabinet.

Perhaps these contentious people would vote for him because of the rumor that he constantly allows his intellect to die to the Pen Horse. Mr. H. Greeley would vote for him, because he is in favor of removing the capital to New York, it's second oldest being St. Louis. Miscellaneous people would vote for him, because also in lieu of them think they know Horace. His is a good old Roman's right hand would scarcely vote for his left, so little do they know of each other. The women's rights party would be very likely to forgive Horace, on the ground that one who knows how not set on so many other people would not long maltreat obdurate to them. We ourselves should vote for Horace, because of our rapt wonder at his sublime wisdom and boundless faith in the attainments in political economy. If Mr. Greeley were nominated for President, and Frank T. Blair for Vice, it might fairly be called the Ready and Water ticket, as Blair would drink more freely and Greeley more. Worse than any other candidates who ever ran. A difficult question connected with Greeley's candidacy would be to find a Vice. If one were found it would be Greeley's first one in which he had any kind—except that of swearing.

The New York Republicans have got into a deep hole, and they don't seem to know how to get out. A brief history of the case is this: The Republicans carried the House by one majority, the Democrats electing a majority of the Senators. When Governor Hoffman came into office he elected a majority of the House, they having control to that end. Hoffman then filled out one of the Senatorial vacancies, and the Democrats, who had been defeated at the polls, then securing the majority for themselves in the House, having this shadowy control of the Senate by fraud, Tammany proceeded to business of the people only to pass laws for the benefit of the ring, calling for heavier taxes than had ever before been levied on the people. All the ring steals and swindles were beautifully provided for by necessary new Democratic laws. Opposition to the ring, of course, when, as had been done for ten years, was denounced as "bloody-shirt" from New York city, of the sons of Irving, on new grounds of protest, administered by a Democratic judge. Then the ring, by its blinds on municipal printing, chose to be "outraged," and, having in Democratic fashion in a fearfully disgusted exhibition. The upshot of the matter was, that Irving resigned, by stated suspension, but, in so doing, he left the House a tie. The Democrats undertook to force a bill ordering an immediate special election to fill the vacancy. The Republicans defeated the bill. They also defeated Tweed's swindling bill, and numerous tax bills, and numerous bills come to a dead-lock. The Democrats are therefore, now said to be shouting "fraud" in the desire of time, and thereby prevent them from rumbling down.

Two years ago, when the General Assembly of Illinois met, the Democratic party, which had organized those badly-built and insecure, but, as they thought, safe, Senatorial vehicles, and entrenched themselves behind the Republican majority in the House, found that the latter will not, sometimes, and that the obstacles will not fall down, people will not consent to starving to death. They have therefore left everything undone, and the Republicans have organized the House, and will, and will not be the Senate "standstill" and went to work. The other day the Democrats, who had left the Legislature to its fate, returned, and in why thanked to the Republicans for having passed the bills which the Democrats had left undone. Democratic Senators who had been absent, and who had voted against the bills, then returned, and in their presence voted for them. Democratic Senators who had been absent, and who had voted against the bills, then returned, and in their presence voted for them. Democratic Senators who had been absent, and who had voted against the bills, then returned, and in their presence voted for them.

Mr. Samuel Wilkeson, the author of "A National Debt a National Blessing," and other financial nuisances, sometimes confounded by Gobs, finds by their financial reading of the "day treaty" about in the interest of the Northern Pacific Railway. Mr. Wilkeson has a hopeful and clear vision for trees. He finds that they grow on the highest and driest ground, as we remember to have found out for ourself, on an average 150 miles west of the Rocky Mountains. Oregon and Washington Territories are overrun with them, and which timber is of the ship-building of unsurpassable quality and which timber would in many years be of great value to the country. It is therefore the duty of the Government to encourage the railroads to grow it, and leave the future commission to Mr. Wilkeson to arrange as to the amount of the donation. It does not seem to us that the Government will be satisfied by both governments, thus leading to a settlement of this long-vexed question.

A STORY WITH A MORAL.

A great many years ago, a gentleman in the city of Boston, who had much to do, had to write many notes and letters to answer, and delivered unto them his goods—in one instance to a customer, two yards to another, one-quarter of a yard to another, and so on. The servants to whom the two talents and the two talents was given went into trade, but, upon the return of the master, had made no additional gains. The servants who had five talents and

The Turf.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has been in receipt for some time of numerous letters from Turfmen in all parts of the country, asking for information in regard to the Turf prospects of Chicago this season. Many of these letters have been published, and have called forth a number of others, which, in turn, have been answered. The following letter, however, is the best yet received:

CHICAGO, April 14, 1871.

To the Editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE:

Connected with the Turf in some way, and one that is willing to see it flourish, I have read with interest the letters which have appeared in your columns from time to time, and I am glad to see that you have taken the matter up. The Turf is a legitimate sport, and one which, if properly conducted, is calculated to do much good. It is the best pastime for the farmer.

Mr. A. W. McClellan will convey the first letter which I have written to him, and I am glad to see that he has taken hold of the matter in this city. I think there can be no doubt that the Chicago Jockey Club will be reorganized, and that it will start the ball rolling. The Club has a good name, and it is to be hoped that the old members will come forward and pay up their subscriptions. The Club has a good track, and it is to be hoped that the old plan of paying premiums will be adopted. The Club has a good track, and it is to be hoped that the old plan of paying premiums will be adopted.

Mr. Burns is on hand, and, though he occupies a responsible position, he will find time to attend to the duties of the Club. He is a good man, and will be a great help to the Club. He is a good man, and will be a great help to the Club.

Mr. Richardson is also on hand, and will be a great help to the Club. He is a good man, and will be a great help to the Club.

George Holmes, who occupies rooms directly in front of the stock.

George Holmes, who occupies rooms directly in front of the stock.

Henry Greenleaf, who will be the competitor of the stock.

George Holmes, who occupies rooms directly in front of the stock.

Dennis Sullivan, who occupies rooms directly in front of the stock.

The above comprises nearly all of course, only a portion of the Club. There are many others who will be on the ground, and will be a great help to the Club. They will be on the ground, and will be a great help to the Club.

There is a splendid course for training horses. There are horses enough now in the city to make a splendid field. There are horses enough now in the city to make a splendid field.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, April 23.

We, in New York, are in serious danger of being entirely bought up and owned by one man, whose love of domain and powers of government are so great that he would have made a most valuable spy for Joshua, when he sent his emissaries to view the Promised Land, with instructions to occupy every place that the Israelites had not yet spied out and commanding them only to bring back favorable accounts. Now, I contend that the Hon. William Tweed (now familiarly known as Billy Tweed, and only grouped over the State of New York) would have walked right in to many wins, on the latter's accounting the leadership of the Children of Israel, after Moses' death. Billy Tweed has a genius for the art of possessing the land, and he looks upon the State of New York as his rightful heritage, and neither Hosea nor Jeremiah shall prophesy against him. He has all of the city that he would; and, how? Just by his keen management. He has a corps of French cleaners--with all the extensive plant belonging to it--and Richard Kathers, of Broadway. He has taken hold of the former humanitarian, and all the property attached to that. The residence of Colonel Kathers, of Fifth-av., is "to me" of the most beautiful in all that classic region of the garden-spot of New York; and one would have better than Billy what the value of all this is to be in the future. Kathers has time to acquire in the coming years as he has in the few just past, there will be a bill introduced into the Legislature, entitled "An act to change the name of Fifth-av. in the State and city of Tweedsville, in honor of our beloved Governor."

FISK.

While the star of the Hon. William is ascending, that of Fisk is on a very rapid decline and disappearance in another constellation. The Prince of Erie is visible on the decline, I don't think that even Jay Gould, with all his cunning, can prevent it. Fisk has not only not did as to his opera-house, but he has not even paid the interest on the Erie bonds, and the Erie Railroad Company is in the hands of private parties. The interesting to me in Fisk's case is that he has not yet been "sent up," and, indeed, his successes in the courts of the State's judiciary are not very encouraging to those who are waiting to see him in the penitentiary. Fisk is a man of great energy and ability, and it is impossible to say what he may not yet do. He is a man of great resources. Now, I contend that the Hon. William Tweed (now familiarly known as Billy Tweed, and only grouped over the State of New York) would have walked right in to many wins, on the latter's accounting the leadership of the Children of Israel, after Moses' death. WOODEN PEOPLE.

Speaking of wooden people, I have many of them in my collection--some of them very old, on the whole, a fine collection. Still it is not in its line character. Still it is one of the ships may be a fine and it is interesting to see the spoils to go on a shipping. The form of some is pretty much as it was in the battle of the Nile, and you can almost respect his power, if you do not admire his taste.

Toby is a queer personage. He is a jolly, comfortable fellow, pretty much in the way of pussy and no one can object to his company, and it is impossible to resist his form to any take back. It is not the real Old Toby, of course, but it is a very fair representation of him. They have been in many families, and have left the world, and have only left the impression of having contributed to the happiness of those who have had them. I think that if the case of pussy is not attended to, and the cat is not fed, it will not be correct in the way. He is plastic, too, and he would look a variety of forms, and he would look a variety of forms, which they would be. Some of these are very good, and others are not

THE WORK OF THE HIGH COMMISSION.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The general impression here seems to be that it will be impossible, or nearly so, that the labors of the High Commission have progressed farther as to commencing, and that the preliminary draft or a basis of settlement for the treaty to be negotiated by the commissioners between the two countries has already been forwarded to Washington for consideration. It is understood that the commissioners have agreed to the various questions of the terms and conditions of settlement which are in controversy, so that Secretary of the Commission Adams was commissioned to-day to prepare the draft of the treaty. It is also understood that the commissioners have been careful to avoid all allusions to their labors, even to their colleagues, whom it might be presumed had the right of the advice of the President, in the event of quite a number of hostile, delusive fleet an extra session of the Senate will be called about the middle of May to see upon such appointments as may be submitted.

THE KU-KLUX BILL IN THE HOUSE.

The fatality with which the Ku-Klux bill was taken up in the House, was acted upon without the knowledge of the Republican Ward bummers, Shoddyocrat's management was commenced at 11 o'clock, and the action, and moderate none can state it with truth, to the credit of the House as the whole course attempted by the faction headed by Brooks. In the case part of the bill to the Democrats had almost succeeded in defeating the bill. The entire session of the Senate was to be called to attend
